Local Woman is Descendant Of Daniel Boone

THE BOONE BOY: Might as well get in the swing of things with the rest of the world.

So sing it, folks:
"Born near Reading in the state of Penn.—he moved to Caroline in 1740 plus ten—he fought in ol' Kentucky, a land of plenty—and he moved into Mizoo, where he died in 1820.

"Dan-yelllllll! Daniel Boone—the man with the Quaker pa. Sing it loud!

Yep, we might as well give Daniel Boone a bit of the limelight, too.

What started this all is a letter I saw, written to Mrs. Lloyd Parish of this city. The letter was a copy of a marriage write-up in a newspaper in Morganfield, Ky., and the wedding occurred Nov. 10, 1865.

And what I'm driving at is this: We may not have any descendant of Davy Crockett in our town but we do have a descendant of Daniel Boone.

Mrs. Parish is the descendant.

The article tells of the marriage of John Murphy and Mrs. Julia Yeager, and the story says:

"The bride comes from the best families in Kentucky. She was Julia Rhodes, whose mother was a granddaughter of Col. Phillip Boone, a great-nephew of Daniel Boone, the great pioneer of Kentucky."

And Julia Rhodes Yeager, who married John Murphy, was the great-grandmother of Mrs. Parish of this city.

JOHN IN EUROPE: I've received a couple of postal cards from John Poulos since he left Harrisburg the middle of June for Greece, his native country.

The first said: "Greetings from Italy. Have fine time."

The second: "Greetings from Athens. I have fine time."

I STARTED to call this department "Wildlife in Texas Transplanted to Southern Illinois," then thought that maybe a certain Baptist preacher would start having nervous fits at the tide and changed my mind.

Anyhow, Bernie Ewell, who visited his son, Bill, at Burk Burnett, Texas, has returned home. And he brought with him a tarantula.

The tarantula is a large venomous spider.

The one Mr. Ewell brought back is black and is big—probably five inches across. He did not let it crawl over him but kept it in a jar. I saw it at the home of his son, John, on West Lincoln street.

The tarantulas run to their holes in the ground in a hurry when they see people but Mr. Ewell managed to catch the one he brought back.

Delay Action on Ordinance Against City Oil Drilling

The ordinance which would prohibit drilling for oil in the corporate limits of Harrisburg has been sent to the Illinois Municipal League for inspection and therefore was not up for reading at yesterday's city council meeting.

Two weeks ago City Attorney George B. Lee was instructed by the council to prepare an ordinance banning drilling within the city, for introduction at yesterday's meeting.

Mr. Lee told the council yesterday that the attorney for the Illinois Municipal League had requested that the ordinance be sent to him for inspection and that he had done so. The ordinance had not been returned to this city.

Joe Holden, a resident of Gaskins City, spoke against drilling in the city at yesterday's council meeting. He said that the residents themselves would get very little revenue if oil were struck, that streets would be torn up and that with the city undermanned such as it is, there would be a great hazard from the possibility of mine gas explosions.

The council decided at the meeting to use Vern Joyner, justice of the peace, for police cases until Police Magistrate Charles McKenzie, who is confined to his home, is able to take care of them.

Expect Stratton To Veto Korean Bonus Measure

Signs Bill Creating Commission to Study Question

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. William G. Stratton today was expected to veto the Korean veterans bonus bill after signing a law creating a commission for a two-year investigation of the bonus question.

The governor Tuesday signed a bill to establish the 16-member "Illinois Veterans Compensation Commission" to carry out a complete study of the bonus issue.

The commission will report to the General Assembly in 1957 on what other states have done or will do, what veterans organizations think should be done by Illinois and how any bonus plan should be financed.

The commission will consist of five members of each house, the chairman of the Illinois Budgetary Commission and five members to be named by the governor.

Stratton last week said he thought the commission approach was the most reasonable. He indicated he would veto the bill to submit a 150-million-dollar bonus bond issue to the people.

Other bills signed by the governor Tuesday:

Raise the pay of township assessors in townships of less than 14,000 from $5 to $8 a day, and require the assessors to keep their offices open daily.

Require candidates for public office to include a non-Communist, non-subversive oath in their petitions for nomination.

Create a commission to investigate the use of narcotics, and treatment and penalties for users and sellers.

Create a commission to study public pension laws.

Establish a University of Illinois stores and service fund of 1½ million dollars from the university income fund for expenses in operating storerooms and service departments of the university.

Require the county clerk to certify to the board of election commissioners 55 days before the election the names of candidates registered with the state or county; and require an abstract of votes for clerk of the Supreme Court and canvassing of the vote for clerks of the Appellate Court.

Establish a new code for savings and loan associations.

Transfer administration of state-owned mineral wealth from the Department of Finance to the Department of Mines and Minerals.

Give judges until Nov. 1, 1955, to decide if they wish to participate in the judges retirement system.

Veto Bill Making Cities Liable for Damage by Workers

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. William G. Stratton Tuesday vetoed a bill to make downstate cities responsible for damages or injuries caused by policemen and firemen on duty.

The bill had drawn the strong objections of city officials.

"This bill would impose a tremendous risk upon downstate cities," the governor said. "Under existing law, a municipality is not responsible for the negligence of its servants or agents in the performance of its governmental functions. In a suit brought by an injured person against a fireman or policeman performing governmental functions, the city is not a party defendant and has no notice or opportunity to defend. This presents the possibility of collusion between those who are parties in the suit."

Other bills vetoed by the governor would have:

Extended the nursing home regulation act to include "sheltered care homes." The attorney general found the bill was "vague, indefinite and uncertain."

Give the probate court jurisdiction over inheritances located in foreign countries where the heir due to political conditions could not use the property.

Exempted life insurance policies up to $1,000 from consideration by the Illinois Public Aid Commission in fixing public aid benefits.

Imposed a $500 fine or six months in the county jail for putting slugs in a coin telephone. The governor found the penalties "harsh and unusual."

Moore Rites at Eldorado Thursday

Funeral services for Mrs. Lillian Moore, 42, wife of Rev. Charles Moore and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker of Eldorado, who died at 6 a. m. Tuesday at her home in Decatur, will be held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the Wolf Creek church with the Rev. T. Leo Dodd officiating. Burial will be at the Wolf Creek cemetery.

THAT BIG SMILE ON THE FACE OF "PUSHER" LYNCH is in anticipation of his retirement as Jaycee president, as he hands the reins of office for the coming year to John Richard Small at last night's regular meeting. Other Jaycee officers for the ensuing year are: Bob Wilson, internal vice-president; Lee Cutting, external vice-president; Don Hughes, secretary; and Bill Ferrell, treasurer. Tom Davenport, secretary last year, had been elected president for the coming year, but resigned due to pressing business reasons, and Small was elected to replace him. (Photo by Tom Davenport)

Eastern Half of Nation Swelters in 100-Degree Heat Seventh Straight Day

By United Press

The eastern half of the nation sweltered in a 100-degree heat wave for the seventh straight day today.

A mass of hot, muggy air kept the heat wave simmering from the Dakotas to Maine. Temperatures jumped over the 100-degree mark in the New York area and Pennsylvania Tuesday and threatened to do the same today.

To make matters worse, there was no relief in sight — at least for the next two days.

At least two heat prostration deaths were reported in Michigan and New York City. In Manhattan, blond actress Sherree North was

Airport Board Members Guests Of Kiwanis Club

Three members of the Harrisburg-Raleigh Airport Authority board, Vern DeVille, Sheldon Lancaster and Wilburn Barger, were guests last night of the Kiwanis club at a meeting held at the Masonic temple, Dean Hill, member of the club and also a member of the airport authority board, was also present to represent the board.

DeVill outlined the improvements made at the airport since it was organized in 1947, as spokesman for the group in the absence of Dale Sullivan, chairman of the airport board. DeVille has been a member of the board since the airport was organized.

Total cost of the airport and its improvements since 1947, Mr. DeVille said, has been about $299,000, with the cost to the local authority being about $112,000. The remainder has been supplied by state and federal funds. The work has been through three stages from the purchase of the land and developing it for an airport.

The airport is one of the best No. 2 airports in the state, Mr. DeVille stated. The people who use it are proud of it, he said, and he believes in time it will become as necessary to the community as hard roads are now.

The general public is failing to use it as it could be used, he said. The Civil Aeronautics Board has turned down an application for a mail route because there is not enough potential business here and the passenger potential is not large enough.

Future plans include extending the surfaced runways to take care of visitors who need longer runways for their planes. With the runways extended any plane that wishes can land here and longer runways would be valuable for commercial business, Mr. DeVille stated.

Announcement was made by John Metten that the Boy Scout drive will begin Friday. The Kiwanis club and other civic clubs are assisting in the drive for funds for the Boy Scouts.

Chile Hit by Heavy Snowfall

SANTIAGO, Chile — The heaviest snowfall in 20 years hit this city Tuesday during a cold snap that has much of South America shivering.

Newspapers reported at least three persons have died in Chile as result of a severe winter.

The mercury dropped to 33 here Tuesday. In the Andean region, snows blocked many roads temporarily.

Heat Twists Rail

In New York, the heat twisted the third rail on an elevated train line. All city and state employees and some office workers were sent home early to give them a chance to cool off.

Four teen-aged Canadian boys tried to beat the heat by swimming across the Detroit River. They were given a lecture by immigration officials, but replied, "We just came over for a bottle of pop."

And at Appleton, Wis., two young prisoners took advantage of the 90-degree heat to make an "impossible" escape from the county jail.

The prisoners were let out of their cells because of the heat and climbed to the roof of the jail. From there they jumped about 10 feet to the branches of a frail poplar tree and shinned 50 feet to the ground.

Under-Sheriff Robert Heinritz mopped his brow and said no man in his right mind would have attempted it.

Cold fronts tried to batter their way into the heat and succeeded in cooling off some parts of the Midwest. But for the most part, the cold air merely touched off heavy rainstorms and then retreated, leaving the field clear for the heat.

In the West, meanwhile, it was downright cool.

It didn't seem fair, but Fraser, Colo., reported 41 degrees today and Reno, Nev., had a record July low of 35 degrees Tuesday.

Recover Body of Lad in Williamson County Farm Lake

The body of 10-year-old Dale Smith, who drowned in a farm lake on the Gene Bearden place about a mile north of Drott street in Williamson County July 4, was recovered about 6 p. m. yesterday by Horace Ritchey, state conservation officer from Saline county, and a conservation officer from Carbondale.

The lad, who had lived at Marion and who was visiting his uncle, Mr. Bearden, drowned about 6:30 p. m. Monday in 22 feet of water, and the big pond was dragged Monday night and all day yesterday. During Tuesday the levee was dynamited and the water was lowered about 12 feet. The body then was located.

Ritchey said the boy's mother died about five weeks ago and that the whereabouts of his father had not been determined yesterday. The body was returned to Marion.

Ritchey said that Dale, who could not swim, and a bunch of other boys had been to the pond earlier in the day and that the group had left to play baseball. When young Dale was not found, a group went to the pond where they found his clothing on the bank and an inflated inner tube floating on the water.

Congress Sees Adjournment By August 1

Knowland Predicts President Will Have 'Good Batting Average'

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland predicted today that President Eisenhower will wind up "with a very good batting average" in legislative accomplishments before congressional adjournment expected by Aug. 1.

Senate leaders of both parties expect they can meet the Aug. 1 target date despite the absence of stricken Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.).

Knowland and House GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. and the full House and Senate minority leadership again canvassed with Mr. Eisenhower today a long list of legislation the administration would like passed before adjournment.

The legislative review was similar to Tuesday's White House conference. Knowland said Mr. Eisenhower and the administration have no "must list" of legislation but are vitally interested in a number of bills.

He included on the "important" list Philippine trade extension, highways, military manpower reserve, the atomic ship, mental health and polio vaccine bills, the mutual security appropriation, soldier survivor benefits, minimum wage, schools, housing, public works, customs simplification, sugar act extension, airport construction, small business extension, military public works and refugee act amendments.

"I believe a substantial part of the list finally will be enacted," the California Republican said.

Acting Democratic Leader Earle C. Clements (Ky.), who took over for Johnson when the rangy Texan was stricken with a heart attack Saturday night, said after a meeting of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee Tuesday that "there is no reason to believe that adjournment will be delayed."

Knowland earlier told reporters the GOP would work as cooperatively with Clements as it has with Johnson.

Although Johnson was reported recovering satisfactorily at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Medical Center, his doctor made it clear that the 46-year-old Democratic leader is out of action for the rest of the year. Dr. James Cain, of the Mayo Clinic, said "under no circumstances can he return to his duties during this session. He cannot undertake any business whatsoever for a period of months."

Report Turncoats Are En Route For Hong Kong

HONG KONG — Authoritative information received here today said the three American turncoats who want to return home from Red China are en route south from Peiping by train for Hong Kong.

The sources said the three should reach Canton on Friday and will be handed over to American authorities in Hong Kong at 1 p. m. Saturday (11 p. m. CST Friday).

All preparations have been made here by U. S. authorities to give the three men a cool welcome.

The U. S. consulate here was informed through Peiping diplomatic channels of the intended delivery of the Americans who chose communism after the Korean War and then changed their minds, some time Saturday.

The information, believed to have come from the British and Swedish diplomatic missions in the Communist Chinese capital of Peiping, confirmed the announcement in New Delhi, India, Monday that the Americans would leave Red China July 9th.

The American ex-soldiers are Lewie Grapp, William Cowart and Otho Bell. They chose to stay with the Communists after the Korean War instead of being repatriated.

Two Resign from City School Faculty

Resignations of two teachers from the City schools faculty were accepted by the school board Tuesday evening.

Norris Garner will go to East Alton, where he has been offered a much better situation than is available here. Mrs. Pollyanna Miranda will go with her husband to Vandalia. Mr. Miranda has been coach at the Galatia Community high school.

The Harrisburg board also tendered a contract to Jack Yates of Harrisburg, a SIU graduate in education who will complete his armed services duty within the next few weeks.

Mother of Six Sons Wins $32,000, Has Week to Decide on Trying for $64,000

"Riches and honor are with me." —Proverbs 8:18

By H. D. QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP) — If the folks at the Naval Supply Depot at Mechanicsburg, Pa., don't mind too much, Mrs. Catherine Kreitzer doesn't think she'll come to work today.

She didn't get away from New York until half past midnight, and didn't get to her eight-acre farm near Camp Hill, Pa., until a very wee hour.

It takes a bit out of a body, winning $32,000 on a television quiz show. And, after all, Mrs. Kreitzer is 54 and has six grown sons and nine grandchildren.

Mrs. Kreitzer has the personal calmness that comes from studying the Bible since she was 4 years old (her mother, a Church of God member, read it to her until she learned to read herself). But that calmness has been put to harsh test during the last week as mail and phone calls poured in on her.

Tuesday night she was tense as she prepared for the next-to-last question on the TV "S64,000 Question" show. And she came close to missing the $32,000 question about the Bible—although it was about Jesus' 12 disciples, a subject she knows well.

When it was all over and she had won, she walked off stage mopping her face with a handkerchief and sank down on a chair. An assistant director asked if she would like some water.

"Please," she replied, "I'm rather nervous."

Mrs. Kreitzer must spend the next seven days worrying with her husband, Joseph, and her father, Joseph Bucher, 82, who lives nearby. She would try for $64,000 next week. If she should win, and lose, she'd get only a Cadillac convertible as consolation prize.

Answering questions about the Bible, she has won for three straight shows. Tuesday night, this was the question, a three-part one: "Jesus had 12 disciples. Peter and Matthew were two, and two others both were named James, often distinguished from each other as 'James the Greater' and 'James the Less.'"

"Now—for $32,000—give me the

Former UCLA Student Admits Killing Socialite

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Former UCLA law student John R. Crocker Jr. confessed today to the stabbing and strangling of Mrs. Norma Thompson McCauley, 33-year-old wealthy Bel-Air socialite, police said.

Detectors said Crocker, 34, booked on suspicion of murder, broke down under marathon questioning and finally admitted he killed the attractive social figure.

"I did it," detectors quoted him. Crocker, a Maine-born ex-sailor, was arrested in his Los Angeles apartment Tuesday a few hours after the socialite divorcee was found beaten, stabbed and strangled in the bedroom of her $50,000 home.

She was covered with blood. Her white lace, pearl-ornamented stole was twisted in tourniquet fashion around her neck and at least five stab wounds were in her body.

Detectors said Crocker, in a "full confession," said he murdered Mrs. McCauley in trying to affect a reconciliation of their alleged romance.

"She didn't want to and I got irritated," detectors quoted him as saying. "I still love her." He also admitted to police he once threatened to kill her "if she broke up with me."

Crocker said he "fell in love" with the society matron when he worked as her houseboy last year while studying law at UCLA. He said he was not the cause of Mrs. McCauley divorcing Frank McCauley last March 3. Crocker left the McCauley household last year when the victim separated from McCauley, 38, a World War II Air Force ace.

$100,000 Damage As Trucks Pile Up

BELLEVILLE, Ill. — One person was injured and $100,000 damage reported in the pile-up of three tractor-trailers on Ill. 133 near here.

Mrs. Dixie Parsons of Evansville, Ind., 35-year-old wife of one of the drivers, was seriously injured.

State police say one vehicle side-swiped a truck. The truck jackknifed, spilled gasoline on the highway and caught fire.

The first truck then hit another which also jackknifed and slid into a ditch.

State and Belleville police and fire companies from two nearby communities were called to the scene.

One of the trucks was demolished but the drivers were not hurt.

Will Make Own Decision, President Says

Hopes for Trust Among Nations to Lead to Good Faith

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower spoke today of peace and politics.

He voiced hope that a trust could be developed among nations that would lead to more sincere good faith and eventually real peace. That trust is not present now, the President said.

As for politics, Mr. Eisenhower told his news conference that he would not be—as he put it—forced into running for a second term next year. He said that is a decision he will make himself.

The President was questioned at length about his estimate for the chances of peace as the Geneva Big Four conference approached. He also was quizzed about the controversial Dixon-Yates contract, and his political future.

The President said he will go to the Geneva conference which begins July 18 in a very hopeful attitude. But he stressed that his hope must have greater food on which to nourish before it can become an expectation.

Mr. Eisenhower described heavy military spending as perfectly stupid, particularly when it is the hope of so much of the world that these weapons would not be needed for warfare.

His political future was brought up when a reporter pointed out that Sen. Ralph Flanders (R-Vt.) said in a July 4 speech that the President "cannot refuse to run" for a second term.

The President said that whether he is a candidate again is a decision he will have to reach for himself. Almost as an afterthought, he added—sometimes.

The President also dwelt on these other subjects:

Dixon-Yates: He would be willing to cancel the Dixon-Yates contract if the city of Memphis, Tenn., goes ahead with construction of its own power plant. The city said it intends to do so.

Military reserve: He is hopeful that Congress will enact legislation creating a 2,900,000-man ready reserve force along the lines he has proposed.

Minimum wage: He still favors the administration's 90-cent-an-hour minimum wage proposal. He has never predicted one way or the other whether he would sign legislation calling for a $1 an hour minimum. The Senate has passed a $1 minimum. The House is considering proposals ranging from 90 cents to $1.25.

Explain Program In Cutting Trees On School Grounds

Numerous inquiries and some complaints have been received by Harrisburg City school authorities from school patrons because trees on some of the school grounds have been cut down.

Recognizing the interest of the parents, Superintendent Russell Malan stated yesterday the action was part of a long-range program of forestry, designed to give maximum benefits, but with some temporary immediate disadvantage.

The trees being removed are largely soft maple, he said. They are up to 50 years of age, are mostly damaged inside and subject to loss of limbs in heavy winds.

New trees, planted a few years ago in anticipation of removal of the present trees, have now reached a point where they cannot continue to grow. Eventually, he said, should the old trees be left standing, they will be blown over, and there will be no new crop coming up to replace them unless the new trees are now given an opportunity to fill out symmetrically.

Begin Summer Band Rehearsals Thursday At the High School

Summer band rehearsals for the members of the Harrisburg Township high school band will begin Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the high school.

Two night rehearsals will be held each week throughout the summer on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Sectional and beginning band rehearsals will be held during the day.

Barnard Rites Thursday 2 p. m.

Funeral services for Mrs. Magie Barnard, 74, wife of John Barnard, RFD 1 Harrisburg, who died at Doctor's hospital in Carbondale at 5 a. m. yesterday, will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. in the chapel of the Gibbons funeral home.

Rev. Roy Reynolds will officiate at the services and burial will be at the Sunset Hill cemetery.

GM Plans to Triple Shares of Common Stock

NEW YORK (UP)—General Motors Corp. made plans today to triple its shares of common stock in a move which reflected new growth and expansion of the nation's largest manufacturing concern.

Plans for the three-for-one stock split were announced Tuesday night shortly after the close of the New York Stock Exchange.

The stock soared to a new high of $114 a share before the announcement Tuesday, and rose as high as $121 a share on West Coast exchanges after the announcement.

The split would boost the number of common shares in the automobile manufacturing concern to 450 million, the largest number of shares authorized by any American company. The firm retains some 60 million of the shares authorized. The remaining 90 million shares are owned by some 500,000 stockholders.

Under the split plan each of these stockholders would receive three shares for each one held as of Aug. 8. Stockholders will vote on the split at a special meeting Sept. 23, in Wilmington, Del. The split shares would be issued about Oct. 10.

The stock split plan comes in a year of high production and financial activity for GM.

The company sold 4,390,430 shares of stock last February to raise 325 million dollars in new capital for expansion. It was the largest financing ever undertaken by an American industrial firm.

Another expansion and modernization program costing 500 million dollars was announced several weeks ago.

Harlow H. Curtice, General Motors president, announced earlier this year he expected 1955 to be the biggest sales and production year in the firm's history.

To Draft 10,000 In September

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department Wednesday announced that 10,000 men will be drafted into the Army in September.

The September quota is the same as that for each month since April. It will bring to 1,938,430 the number of men drafted since the Korean war started.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Thou shalt not bear false witness. —Ex. 20:16.

Millions of people think it allowable to spread false things about those who differ in politics or religion.

There are few who are wholly good and very few who are wholly bad. We should tell only the truth about friend or foe.

A Fate Worse Than Prison

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

In the fall of 1953, when the exchange of prisoners began in Korea after the July truce signing, 23 Americans announced they were sticking with the Communists. Even before the exchange was completed, two GI's recanted and returned to America. Later they were court-martialed, convicted of helping the enemy, and given prison terms.

Since that time, one of the remaining 21 has died. And now Peiping says three more want to come home and will be allowed to do so. In fact, the Red Chinese strongly hint that the other 17 may want the same thing, and that the Communists won't stand in their way.

All this makes quite a commentary on life in Red China. After almost two years of sampling this life, three and perhaps all 20 of the renegade Americans evidently feel that jail in this country is better than "freedom" under the Communists.

For that is what their decision means. One of the three wants to stay in Japan, but the choice will not be his. Once they are turned over by the Chinese, they will be in the hands of U. S. military authorities. And they already have been warned they will be held accountable for their acts.

Most of their days since the exchange these GI's have spent in China. Information about them has been meager. But reports indicate they have been going to school, trying various jobs, and participating in sports. This was what they said they wanted in late 1953. By contrast, they said of America: "We know what awaits us were we to go back. It is not a pleasant thought."

Now it is different. They are choosing almost certain imprisonment in a free country, as against liberty in a land that is living prison.

One of the three is even reported to have written home: "I may be hung, but I'd rather be hung than stay here."

Well, so much for the Communist Paradise in the years 1953-55. It appears to have been found somewhat wanting by men who embraced it, for the most part, voluntarily.

Perhaps, as a sort of secondary punishment, the returning renegades ought to be taken on a U. S.-sponsored tour of all the free lands, to tell in their own words what it means to live under Chinese communism.

If they could paint a vivid word picture of the truth of this life, particularly for the benefit of some of the more naive peoples in lands like India and Indonesia, it would constitute a small repayment for their error in deserting the cause of freedom two years ago.

DREW PEARSON Says: Crack In Iron Curtain Takes Us By Surprise; We Should Exchange Movies With Moscow; New Secretary Of The Army Became Anti-McCarthy Thanks To McCarthy.

WASHINGTON — The contrast between V. Molotov, the gloaming, ill-mannered Russian foreign minister who antagonized everyone at San Francisco 10 years ago, and the obliging, mild-mannered, western hat-wearing Molotov who charmed the diplomats at San Francisco this last week follows a carefully laid out pattern of Soviet policy which has caught the United States napping.

For approximately 10 years we have been complaining about the Iron Curtain. But now the Iron Curtain is being lifted — just a crack — and we don't know what to do about it. It isn't much of a crack to be sure. Though when you compare it to the days when Russian soldiers who had come in contact with the west in Austria or Berlin were not allowed to mingle with their own families when they went home for fear they'd describe the wonders of the capitalist world, even that crack is significant.

This summer, a whole slew of visas is being issued to Americans to visit Russia. They range from ex-Senator Benton of Connecticut to Claude J. Desautels, a legislative assistant to Congressman Aspinall of Colorado, to

Expect Stratton To Sign New Divorce Law

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. William G. Stratton this week is expected to sign new divorce procedure legislation which its inventor believes may cut divorce actions nearly 40 per cent.

The three bills provide a "60-day cooling off" period between the first notice of a divorce suit and the actual filing of the complaint.

A similar law passed in 1953 was held unconstitutional by the Illinois Supreme Court on grounds it did not give quick access to the courts. But the law's originator, Cook County Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner, and leading constitutional lawyers have amended the 1953 law so they believe the objections have been removed.

The 1953 law provided that the complaining party file a statement of intent to file divorce proceedings. This did not bring the case under the court's official cognizance until actual divorce proceedings were filed 60 days or more thereafter.

The judge in the 60-day waiting period could invite, but not order, a conference between the two parties. There was also insufficient provision for cases in which the circumstances required immediate court action.

The new law will bring the divorce case immediately onto the court's official record. The complaining party will file a summons upon the defendant with the court clerk. The clerk will put this on the court's docket, and the sheriff will serve the summons, or notice, on the defendant. Then there is a 60-day waiting period.

After 60 days, the complaint or argument for divorce can be filed by the complainant. The defendant has a period of time to answer the complaint. The case can then be set for hearing.

The new law also will permit the judge to order the parties to meet with him in the 60-day cooling off period before going into court. There are stipulated circumstances in the law for cases to be heard immediately.

Miner said that during the nine months the 1953 law was in effect there were 4,000 fewer divorce suits filed in Cook county alone, a drop of 38 per cent.

Miner maintains many divorces are impulsive, stemming from bitterness of domestic strife for which there is no hearing this side of the divorce courts.

Vincent J. Greenfield, of Sears, Roebuck in Washington.

The visas are being issued simultaneously with the visit of Soviet farmers to Iowa, plus the free and open chance given to Bill Hearst to visit Russia, and with the proposal of Soviet university editors to visit the United States.

MRS. SHIPLEY SAYS NO

But instead of taking advantage of this crack in the curtain, we have reacted as if shot. When Soviet university editors wanted to come to the USA, the unimaginative Mrs. Shipley, State Department czarina of passports, put her obliging foot down. The editors did not come.

When the Des Moines Register-Tribune proposed bringing Soviet farmers to Iowa, the red-tape artists in the State Department, who happen, incidentally, to be friends of Joe McCarthy, raised fingerprint technicalities. Finally fingerprints were made unnecessary by appointing the farmers as officials.

When a Russian Orthodox bishop overstayed his passport by a couple of days in New York, Mrs. Shipley yanked him out of the USA, thereby causing the Russians to remove Rev. Georges Bissonette, the only Catholic priest in Moscow, in retaliation.

So it has gone. Instead of taking advantage of the new crack in the curtain, we have missed all the cues. We have completely lacked imagination. We have built up our own Iron Curtain instead of realizing that we have far more to sell than Russia, far more to show if we can get the Russians to visit us.

MOVIES TO MOSCOW

I would like to suggest, therefore, that since the State Department is so stodgy about people-to-people friendship, the American people themselves concoct some ideas on how we can win friends behind the Iron Curtain.

As a starter, here is an idea from John B. Elliott of Los Angeles, who writes:

"I suggest that the United States, through the Voice of America, offer to furnish Russian motion picture films of American life to the value of $25,000,000 for exhibition in theatres throughout Russia, in exchange for like values in films of Russia life for similar exhibition in this country."

Mr. Elliott goes on to point out that such a project would require some good faith and some safeguards, but that an assortment of pictures showing all interesting phases of American life, and also of Russian life, would go a long way toward breaking down misunderstanding and help attain the long-range goal of peace.

I agree with him. The Russians might balk at first. But they seem in a mood to be conciliatory. So now is the time to take advantage of it, not sit back and glower as Molotov did 10 years ago and as certain McCarthyites in the State Department are doing today.

EXIT MR. STEVENS

Robert Stevens, who now steps down as secretary of the Army, is one of those sincere, honest businessmen who really want to serve their country but just don't understand the seamy side of politics.

His family founded the giant J. P. Stevens company which operates textile mills around Greenville, S. C. And though it's one of the biggest in the textile business, the Stevens firm hasn't engaged in the price-cutting of its big competitor, Burlington Mills, in order to knock out certain weaker companies.

Stevens himself will go back to head that company. He has a son now working for the bottom, getting no favors, learning the trade.

Probably Stevens would have left the Washington scene an efficient hard-working unknown had it not been for Senator McCarthy, who at first he shunned and feared.

Red Sea parrotfish actually bite off and chew up chunks of coral rock while feasting on the tiny animals living inside.

At least 7,000,000,000 acres of the earth's surface are forested.

It was later when he decided to stand up to McCarthy that he got into trouble.

How definitely that era has passed is now illustrated by the man who takes Stevens' place, Wilber Brucker, ex-governor of Michigan. Brucker came to Washington a strong McCarthyite. When appointed to the Defense Department as general counsel he was still a McCarthyite.

But one day he had to go up to see McCarthy to explain why Joe's two gumshoes, Don Surine and Tom Lavenia, were security risks. McCarthy gave him the dressing down of his life. He bawled him out unmercifully. By the time he left, Brucker was the most anti-McCarthy man in town.

55 Commission Study Bills Passed by Legislature Would Cost $692,000

SPRINGFIELD — The 68th General Assembly would be the most studious Legislature in the history of the state if Gov. William G. Stratton signed all the bills for study commissions passed.

The Legislature passed 55 study commission bills carrying appropriations totaling $692,000. But the legislators had many other things they wanted to study, too, since they introduced commission bills carrying total appropriations of $1,686,569.

Many of the commission bills passed will fall before the governor's veto pen, he told newsmen Friday. Stratton in the past limited the Legislature to about $200,000 for special studies.

But Stratton has already signed bills which carry appropriations for nearly that amount for commission studies.

In addition, he is expected to sign the School Problems Commission appropriation of $40,000, the Pension Laws Commission bill for $15,000, and a bill for $10,000 to study the question of annual legislative sessions.

Okayed $10,000 for Canal Study

Bills already signed appropriate: $50,000 for a northeast Illinois metropolitan area commission to study local government needs and services.

$10,000 for a study of the Illinois-Mississippi Canal and Sinissippi Lake Park conversion.

$25,000 for an election laws commission.

$15,000 to study the problems of the aging and aged.

$10,000 to investigate tax foreclosure and tax sales.

$60,000 to look into the state's higher education needs.

$15,000 for a commission to cover rehabilitation of the Statehouse.

Stratton has vetoed bills for $35,000 for an Illinois economic development study and $25,000 for a study of transporting water from the Lake Michigan to downstate Illinois.

Two commission bills were unique because they asked for no money. They were proposals for study of charging of admission fees at state parks, and the feasibility of using Horseshoe Lake in Madison and St. Clair counties as a state recreational area.

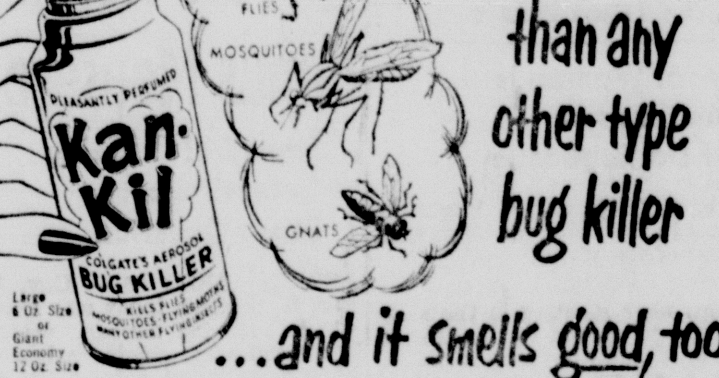

Defeated Coal Products Bill

Two of the commission appropriation bills were not for interim studies. One, which was defeated, asked for $210,609 to pay back expenses of the defunct Coal Products Commission, and another, for $177,400, would renovate the House Chambers to handle the increased membership under reapportionment in 1957.

Commission bills passed, and still to be acted on by the governor, include: $50,000 for drainage and storm water study; $15,000 for an alcoholic liquor study; $15,000 for mental health; $10,000 for the Mississippi scenic parkway; $5,000 for sewers; $25,000 for judicial circuits; $25,000 for election laws; $10,000 for a Great Lakes basin commission; $40,000 for school problems; $25,000 for juvenile delinquency studies; $10,000 for Grade A milk laws; $10,000 for annual legislative sessions; $15,000 for pension laws; $5,000 for veterans' compensation; $30,000 for narcotics; $10,000 for Lake Michigan fishing; $10,000 for atomic power; $12,000 for water and drought; $5,000 for plumbing laws; $5,000 for charitable trust laws; $5,000 for mining laws; $10,000 for economic and population changes; still another $10,000 for Grade A milk laws; and $10,000 for hospitalization or paraplegic war veterans study.

Bills Vetoed By Stratton

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Gov. William G. Stratton today vetoed bills to create an educational research department, require licensing of tree experts and convey canal lands to the city of Ottawa.

The bill to establish the research department would have appropriated $50,000 for an office under the supervision of public instruction. Stratton said the appropriation was outside the budget and he believes the superintendent can carry on any necessary research with his regular appropriations.

The governor said he vetoed the tree expert licensing bill because the attorney general expressed doubts on its constitutionality.

Stratton said the disposition of Illinois-Michigan Canal lands requires further study and he was therefore vetoing the bill to give such lands to the city of Ottawa.

He said the Department of Public Works is carrying on a study of the problems in disposing of the land.

The governor signed into law bills which will:

Raise the pay of village trustees in villages under 60,000 from $5 per meeting to $10.

Permit a court to hold in contempt a parent who does not allow the other parent to enjoy visitation rights with children as ordered by the court.

Repeal the ban against use of party ballots for classroom instruction.

Abolish the state positions of weights and measures inspector, and weights and measures calibrator.

Provide that county commissioners take office the first Monday in December.

Prepare Answer For Prisoners Holding Hostages

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Washington State Prison officials today were preparing an answer to demands from rioting convicts who held nine prison employees as hostages.

Earlier, the prison had announced only seven men held by the convicts, but an early morning check of personnel showed two more employees missing and reported seen in the custody of the rioters.

Spokesmen for 800 rebellious convicts said the hostages would be released at 3 p. m. (5 p. m. CST) today if prison officials showed "sincerity" in dealing with the convict demands.

The spokesmen for the prisoners met with three reporters Tuesday night only hours after the riot, triggered by 35 maximum security convicts, swept through the prison.

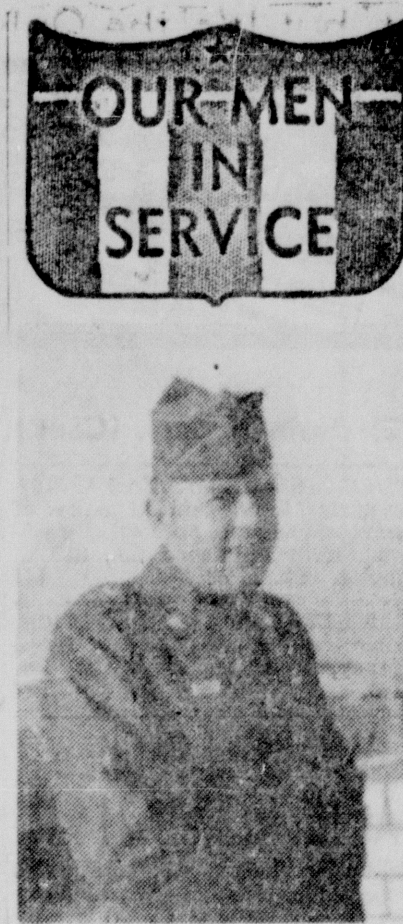

Prison Business Manager William Connell said the riot began while officials were interviewing new inmates in the prison guidance center.

Rioters broke into the room and overpowered officials and guards. B. W. Fain, recreation officer, was knocked unconscious when he resisted the rioters and was revived and treated at the prison hospital where several stitches were taken in his forehead.

Two Women in Solitude to Meditate Crime

DWIGHT, Ill. (AP) — Two elderly women sat in solitary confinement cells today, meditating on the torso murder they committed exactly 20 years ago.

Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, 64, and Mrs. Evelyn Smith, 66, were placed in solitary confinement at the Dwight Women's Reformatory at 8 p. m. Tuesday night. They will not be released until 8 tonight.

Their annual day of solitude is part of a strange provision in the 180-year sentences imposed on both of them for the July 6, 1935, murder of Mrs. Dunkel's son-in-law.

Criminal Court Judge Cornelius Harrington sentenced them in 1936, saying that theirs was the most brutal crime he had ever encountered.

Harrington made sure the two women would spend their lives in at Norris City July 13. Everyone prison and ordered that they be urged to attend.

placed in solitary confinement every year on the anniversary of their crime.

Harrington's provision has been carried out faithfully, except for last year, when reformatory officials said changes in state law overruled Harrington's order. But the judge refused to accept the interpretation and the women's ordeal was re-imposed.

Mrs. Dunkel and Mrs. Smith were convicted of conspiring to murder Ervin Lang, 28, after he had broken off an illicit relationship with his mother-in-law.

Report Shows Taxable Wages Paid To 5,115 Non-Farm Workers in County

In mid-March 1953 about 5,115 of commercial and industrial employees in Saline county received taxable wages under the old-age and survivors insurance program E. Bishop Hill, manager of the Harrisburg social security office, said today.

During the first quarter of 1953, 589 reporting units of employers of commercial and industrial employees covered by the program paid out some $3,724,000 in wages taxable under social security in this county. The largest proportion of employment, 1,997 employees, was in the mining industry.

These and numerous other figures on employment, payrolls, and employing units for the county, state, and the nation, appear in County Business Patterns, First Quarter 1953, just released. Issued under joint sponsorship of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Bureau of the Census, the newly published edition of County Business Patterns is the seventh in a series showing county and industry statistics based on wage reports filed under the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program.

County Business Patterns, Mr. Hill pointed out, is a compilation of statistics derived as a by-product of Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance accounting operations under which records are maintained of social security tax earnings received by every person covered by the Federal insurance program. Employment and payroll data for more than 43 million employees and 3.23 million reporting units of employers covered by the program were tabulated to provide the figures which appear in this edition.

Reference copies of CBP bulletins may be examined at field offices of the U. S. Department of Commerce at district offices of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, and at many public and college libraries, Mr. Hill said.

Death Has 3 Lives

by Brett Halliday

THE STORY: Unwittingly Private Detective Michael Shayne helped Jack Bristow escape arrest for murder. Later Tim Rourke, a reporter, finds Bristow's body under the bed in the apartment of Lucy Hamilton, Shayne's secretary.

XIII

Shayne heard a car pass below in the alley, and carried the body to the fire escape to wait on the landing until Rourke returned with no lights.

Then he carried his burden down swiftly, thrust it in the back seat and got in beside the driver.

"Where we taking him, Mike?" Rourke asked as he drove.

"There's a girl in a motel out there that was disappointed to-night when her husband didn't meet her in front of a house on 18th Street as he'd arranged to. If Jack is the man, she may as well know the worst now as later."

He settled back and lit a cigarette and related his meeting with the hungry girl who called herself Mrs. Peter Smith.

Timothy Rourke, "U-m-m," drove on the boulevard at a moderate speed until Shayne gestured ahead to a tourist court that now stood dark and silent.

"Cabin No. 6," he directed. "You stay back and bring him in when I tell you to. Pull the blanket down from his face so she sees it before she has a chance to get set."

He got out and went to the door of the cabin and rapped lightly. The headlights behind him outlined his figure clearly, and he saw the girl's face peering at him from behind the window after a moment. He knocked again, heard the key turning inside and the door opened a crack. The girl's thin voice, expressing utter defeat, floated out to him through the crack:

"Give me a chance to get back in bed before you turn on the light." Bare feet sped across the floor and the bedsprings creaked. Shayne pushed the door open and flipped the light switch. She cringed away from him in the bed with the covers pulled up tightly about her chin. "What'll you do if I scream?"

"Slap some sense into you," said Shayne flatly. "I've got your husband outside. You want to see him?"

She flung the covers back and started to leap out of bed, showing her body clothed only in a white silk slip, and Shayne gestured her back, saying gruffly, "Wait right there. I'll bring him in to you."

He turned in the doorway and nodded to Timothy Rourke, stepped aside to study the girl's expression with fierce intensity when the reporter entered carrying the blanket-wrapped body with pallid face exposed to the bright overhead light.

At the first moment, Shayne knew he had guessed wrong, and he had it in him to be almost glad that the corpse wasn't her man even though it dashed his hopes for a fast conclusion to the case.

The look of eager expectation on her face changed to curiosity and terror as she sank back on the pillow stifling a moan and shaking her head wildly. "No! That's not him. I never saw him before. Is he... dead?"

Shayne shrugged and told her, "Sorry to bother you, but we hoped you could identify him. Look again, Miss," he urged. "Look at him carefully now you know he isn't your husband. Will you swear you never saw him before?"

She wet her lips and forced her gaze to rest on Bristow's features. She began shaking her head decidedly, then slowly a puzzled look crept into her eyes. She regarded him more intently, breathing, "He does look sort of familiar at that. I don't know. I'd swear I never knew him in my life, but... I don't... just know. It's funny. Maybe I've seen his picture somewhere."

"He's from New Orleans," Shayne helped her. "Does the name Jack Bristow mean anything to you?"

For just an instant, he thought he saw a flash of recognition, of comprehension, on her face. If it had been there at all, she had swiftly gained control of herself and he knew he would get no more from her.

She shook her head definitely and said, "No. I guess now I was mistaken about ever seeing even his picture."

He told her, "I think you're lying. Not about him being your husband. I accept that. But I do believe you know who he is—something about him. And you'd better tell me." His voice became harsh with anger.

"Two people have been murdered tonight," and the killer is still on the town. I think you can tell me something about him. You're inviting death yourself if you don't. Give it to me now. I'll see you're protected, but no one can protect you if you don't."

She shook her head stubbornly, compressing her lips. "Like I told you, I just got here tonight. I don't know anything about any killings in Miami. I swear I don't."

Shayne shrugged and turned away. "All right. If you decide to talk... call me. The name is Michael Shayne, and the number's in the book." He went out and got under the steering wheel.

"Where to now, mastermind?" asked Rourke mockingly.

"Not a single bright idea," said Shayne savagely. "Except to get rid of that cold meat in the back seat as fast as we can."

Attend Metropolitan Leaders' Convention Held at Chicago

D. H. Hiller, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Hiller, attended a Metropolitan Leaders' convention at the Edgewater Beach hotel in Chicago June 29 to July 1.

Leading insurance men from Illinois outside of Chicago and from Iowa attended the convention. Also attending from the Harrisburg staff were Edgar Dickey, Carmi, and Guy Hill, Shawneetown. They were also accompanied by their wives.

While at the convention, Mr. and Mrs. Hiller also attended a banquet with 650 guests in the main ballroom at the hotel. One of the most interesting speakers at the convention was Tom Rosser, Dyersburg, Tenn., an agent who has written a million dollars in insurance for two consecutive years.

The convention was in charge of Austin T. Chusler, New York, the superintendent of the agencies for the midwestern territory.

Celebration at Karel Park Is Huge Success

The July 4 celebration at Karel park on the banks of the Eldorado reservoir was a huge success and those responsible for the program are looking forward to an even greater event next year.

The July 4 program, sponsored by the board of directors of the Eldorado-Raleigh park district, attracted thousands during the day-long event, which got underway about 10:30 a. m. and continued until about 10:30 p. m.

State Treasurer Warren Wright was the featured speaker on the patriotic program at 3 p. m. Master of ceremonies was Rep. Clyde Choate of Anna.

Addresses of welcome were made by the mayors of Eldorado, Carl Johnson, and Raleigh, Fred Dodd. Rev. John Henshaw gave the invocation and benediction, there was gospel singing by Rev. Henshaw and his choir and the crowd joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner." Senator Glen Jones, who was scheduled to appear on the program, could not attend because of illness it was announced.

The all-day celebration included music by two string bands, square dancing and a revue by dancing pupils for the Marlin Dance Studio.

The distinguished guests—Treasurer Wright and Rep. Choate—and members of their parties were entertained during the morning at the home of E. H. Webster, president of the park board, and were guests of the board at a steak luncheon at noon at the Highway cafe.

The closing event of the day was a huge fireworks display. The park area was jam-packed and all roads in the vicinity, including the highway from Eldorado to Raleigh, were lined with parked automobiles as people came out to witness the colorful fireworks over the reservoir.

This was the second annual July 4 celebration and the affair this year was considerably larger than the one in 1951. "We hope next year's will be even bigger and better," declared Mrs. Jesse Evans, secretary of the park board.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

Rickey Is Out in Pittsburgh as Pirates' Building Plan Falls Flat

NEW YORK (NEA) — The Giants and Cardinals are not the only National League clubs that will make changes this season.

Branch Rickey is out in Pittsburgh after a dismal five-year run during which attendance dropped from a high of 1,500,000 in 1949 to the slightly more than 400,000 the Pirates will be fortunate to draw this season.

Making things worse is that the Buccaneers have little to show for five years of wide-spread scouting and nearly a million dollars in bonuses.

Thomas P. Johnson, the lawyer and only owner Pittsburgh fans and baseball writers see, makes it clear that a desperate situation calls for a new deal that would sweep out the entire Rickey organization, the most elaborate and costliest in baseball. That would include Branch Rickey, Jr., vice-president in charge of the farm clubs, and no doubt Fred Haney, although the little manager is personally popular.

Those closest to the Pittsburgh plight rarely see John W. Galbreath, the Columbus realtor who really is co-owner with Johnson, Benjamin Fairless, the retired steel man who is a director of the club, and Bing Crosby own stock. Rickey is in for $250,000 and when the Mahatma, now 73, spoke of protecting his investment, Fairless said he would be delighted to relieve him of it.

Rickey is as active as ever, especially in traveling, in his assiduous pursuit of talent that hasn't clicked since he moved from Brooklyn to Pittsburgh.

"I haven't seen Rickey since the training season," says one of the Pittsburgh writers. "The writers quit paying attention to him, anyway. All we got was a lot of double talk about what was on the farm."

There is some hope for Pittsburgh pitching led by Vern Law, Bob Friend and Ronnie Kline. Haney contends that winning major league pitching is with the parent club and on the farms.

The trouble is that there is nothing to go with it. All hands had high hopes for Gene Freese, but the young second baseman fell on his face before big league pitching.

Such apparently bright prospects as shortstop Dick Groat and catcher Jack Shepard have disappointed. Shepard promised big things facing only left-handed pitching, but when Toby Atwell was hurt, the Stanford product's batting fell off to .250 and it was otherwise demonstrated that he couldn't do a satisfactory full-time job.

Coming out of the Army, Eddie and Johnny O'Brien, among the many paid small fortunes for signing, had to start anew. Eddie has some potential as a shortstop.

Frank Thomas perhaps has dealt the Pirates their heaviest blow in 1955. Thomas last season manufactured 23 home runs and drove in 94 runs, batting .298. To date this trip, the outfielder has chased no more than 21 runs across the plate.

What little attack the Bucs have had this season largely has been supplied by first baseman Dale Long, whom Rickey once attempted to turn into a left-handed catcher.

"Outside of pitchers, the only players with possibilities on farm clubs are fellows who have been with the Pirates," stress those who have suffered with the Pittsburgh club. "We've seen them and they won't do."

So somebody else will be scouting ballplayers for Pittsburgh next spring.

Boxer Suffers Convulsion After Defeat

DETROIT (AP) — Bert Whitehurst, Baltimore heavyweight, was under observation at Detroit Memorial Hospital today after he suffered a convulsion following his defeat by Johnny Summerlin of Detroit.

Whitehurst's handlers said he collapsed from heat prostration and the effects of a severe beating after returning to his dressing room.

Physicians at the hospital said they could not determine immediately whether Whitehurst had suffered any brain damage or was

Mays Hits Two Homers in 11-1 Win by Giants

Managers Swap Punches as Cards Lose to Reds, 5-4

By United Press
A little rest did miracles for Don Newcombe of the Dodgers and it's working even greater wonders today for amazing Willie Mays of the Giants.

Mays, whose batting average dipped as low as .267 last month, has looked like an entirely new ball player since returning to action June 21 after he was benched for the first time in his life because he was "confused."

All told, the young Giant center fielder who was named the most valuable player in the National League for 1954, has slammed out 22 hits in 60 times up and walked eight homers since being re-installed into the line-up. That's a .367 pace and with it, the Giants don't figure to remain in second division much longer.

Mays Hits Two Homers
Willie smashed his 24th and 25th homers of the year while leading the Giants to a lopsided 11-1 triumph over the Pirates Tuesday night. Mays' hitting and Johnny Antonelli's fine four-hit pitching brought back recollections of the Giants' supremacy in the league a year ago.

The league-leading Dodgers, who still keep an eye peeled on the Giants, even though the world champions are 17 games back, dropped their first game of the season in Philadelphia by bowing to the Phillies, 5-4.

Robin Roberts batted in three runs in helping himself to his 12th victory but it was Andy Seminick's two-run homer in the eighth inning that spelled the margin of the victory. Roberts was nicked for Duke Snider's 28th homer and finally gave way to Jack Meyer in the ninth when Brooklyn put together four hits for its final two runs. Meyer came in, however, and retired Gil Hodges for the final out.

Cincinnati nipped St. Louis, 5-4, in a game marked by a free-for-all by both clubs that was touched off when rival manager Birdie Tebbetts and Harry Walker swapped punches in the ninth inning. Johnny Temple's ninth-inning single drove in the winning run in the ninth after Ted Kluszewski and Bobby Adams had homered for Cincinnati and Red Schoendienst, Joe Frazier and Bill Virdon had done likewise for St. Louis. Reliever Joe Black was the winner.

The Braves and Cubs were not scheduled.

A's Best Indians
In the only game played in the American League, Hector Lopez's eighth-inning homer off Early Wynn gave Kansas City a 4-3 victory and knocked Cleveland out of second place.

Shortstop Joe DeMaestri ended Wynn's string of 29 scoreless innings when he opened the game with a homer and the Athletics added another run in the first inning. Homers by Al Smith and Jim Hegan tied the score at 3-all off little Bobby Shantz. Tom Gorman, who relieved Shantz in the eighth, gained his fourth triumph while Wynn suffered his third loss.

The outer green leaves of head lettuce are richer in vitamins than the inner, bleached leaves.

Although he suffered severe poundings in the sixth and eighth rounds and had to be helped from the ring, the former sparring mate of heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano remained on his feet during the entire eight rounds of the feature attraction at the Motor City Arena.

He collapsed in his dressing room shortly after the fight and 30 minutes later became hysterical. Handlers strapped him to a stretcher and rushed him to the hospital.

Durocher, Lopez, Rival Managers, Bombarded by Complaints After Announcing Their All-Star Lineups

NEW YORK (AP)—Leo Durocher and Al Lopez, rival managers for the 1955 All-Star game, were being bombarded by complaints already today, less than 24 hours after announcing their personnel for the annual mid-summer classic at Milwaukee, July 12.

Durocher was under fire on two counts:

1. He by-passed National League batting leader Richie Ashburn of the Phillies.
2. He appeared to be favoring his own Giants' pitching staff by also passing up veteran Sal Maglie (9-4), a 38-year-old right-hander who can use a rest.

Lopez, the Cleveland skipper who will manage the American League All-Stars, also was the target of criticism for passing over first baseman Bill Skowron of the Yankees while selecting six of his own Indian players.

Durocher immediately snapped back at charges that he was giving the "cold shoulder" to Ashburn, who is hitting .342.

"We simply had to have some right-handed hitting to go with all those left-handed hitters picked by the fans," said the annoyed Giant manager.

"I have to start four left-handed hitters—Ted Kluszewski, Eddie Mathews, Duke Snider and Don Mueller—and with Roy Campanella hurt, I might start Smokey Burgess, another left-handed hitter. We're overbalanced with left-handed hitters. If I picked Ashburn the American League would have us at a disadvantage."

Durocher said he talked the matter over with National League President Warren Giles and "we felt we had to have some right-handed power on the team to win."

Regarding the charge that he was purposely giving Maglie more rest, Durocher wouldn't dignify it with a reply. He did say, however:

"I went along entirely with the consensus of the other managers on the pitching staff. I did not pick the pitchers myself."

Four right-handed pitchers and three southpaws were named to the N. L. squad. The staff was headed by Don Newcombe, Brooklyn's 14-game winner, and the other three right-handers were Robin Roberts (12-7) of the Phillies, Gene Conley (9-5) of the Braves and Sam Jones (9-9) of the Cubs. The left-handers chosen were rookie Luis Arroyo (9-3) of the Cardinals, Joe Nuxhall (8-5) of the Redlegs and Harvey Haddix (5-9) of the Cardinals.

Durocher chose Del Crandall of the Braves and Burgess of the Redlegs to back up Campanella, the catcher selected by the fans. He also designated Gene Baker and Randy Jackson of the Cubs, Stan Musial of the Cards, Gil Hodges of the Dodgers and Johnny Logan of the Braves to augment the fans' infield choices of Red Schoendienst of the Cards, Ernie Banks of the Cubs and Mathews and Kluszewski.

In the outfield, Durocher picked his own Willie Mays, Hank Aaron of the Braves and Frank Thomas of the Pirates. The fans chose Duke Snider of the Dodgers, Del Ennis of the Phils and Mueller.

Named as coaches by Durocher were managers Fred Haney of the Pirates and Mayo Smith of the Phillies. Bob Buhl and Chet Nichols of the Braves were designated batting practice pitchers while Coach Bob Keely, also of the Braves, was named batting practice catcher.

The six Cleveland players Lopez picked were pitchers Early Wynn and Herb Score, infielders Bobby Avila and Al Rosen and outfielders Larry Doby and Al Smith.

While Lopez skipped Skowron, who is hitting .365, he named two other members of the Yankees, right-handed pitcher Bob Turley (10-7) and left-hander Whitey Ford (10-3). Rounding out the American League pitching staff are two White Sox hurlers, right-hander Dick Donovan (9-2) and left-hander Billy Pierce (5-5), southpaw Billy Hoedt (8-3) of the Tigers, and right-handers Frank Sullivan (11-6) of the Red Sox and Jim Wilson (5-8) of the Orioles.

Lopez also chose catcher Sherm Lollar and shortstop Chico Carrasquel of the White Sox, first baseman Vic Power of Kansas City and outfielder Jackie Jensen of the Red Sox.

American leaguers picked by the fans were Mickey Vernon of the Senators, Nellie Fox of the White Sox, Jim Finigan of the Athletics and Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers in the infield; Ted Williams of the Red Sox, Al Kaline of the Tigers and Mickey Mantle of the Yankees in the outfield, and Yogi Berra of the Yankees behind the plate.

Don Guttridge of the White Sox and Tony Cuccinello of the Indians were named as coaches, while Steve Gromek of Detroit and Don Mossi of Cleveland will pitch batting practice and Coach Bill Lobe of Cleveland will handle them.

Coaches Resign At Galatia and Thompsonville

Two more area high schools — Galatia and Thompsonville — are looking for a coach today to fill vacancies caused by recently announced resignations.

Sam Miranda resigned at Galatia Saturday and Tuesday Bob Munday announced his resignation from the Thompsonville coaching post.

Munday was at Thompsonville high school three years and during that time his teams won 62 games, including one string of 25 in a row. They captured two Little League conference championships and added ten trophies to the school's trophy case.

Munday, a native of Benton, stated today he expects to remain in the coaching profession in southern Illinois and is considering offers from other high schools.

Miranda coached only one year at Galatia. Faced with a rebuilding job, his team got away slowly, but was starting to roll as the schedule came to a close. Galatia finished the regular season with a record of 10 victories and 15 losses.

Miranda has accepted a position

DAVY CROCKETT AT SHAWNEETOWN—Sunday afternoon Fess Parker, the movie and TV Davy Crockett, visited at Shawneetown and did some water skiing on the Ohio river. Crockett and Mary Jewell Phillips, wife of Rudy Phillips, performed together on the water skis, riding single skis they criss-crossed and went through other formations for the entertainment of large crowd present. Mrs. Phillips, considered one of the top women skiers, performed the "backward Swan", went over the high ski jump and other intricate ski performances. It is said that Parker is considered an outstanding water skier, but due to his movie commitments, he didn't get involved in any of the more dangerous maneuvers. Fist Fight by Managers Walker and Tebbetts 'Unprecedented', Giles Says

CINCINNATI (AP) — National League President Warren Giles said today a fist fight between Managers Birdie Tebbetts of the Cincinnati Redlegs and Harry (The Hat) Walker of the St. Louis Cardinals was "unprecedented."

Giles, a witness to the free-for-all Tuesday night at Crosley Field, said he will be in no hurry to take any action against any of those involved in the scrap.

"I never before heard of two major league managers starting a fight between their teams by being the first to exchange blows," Giles said. "To the best of my knowledge, their fight was unprecedented."

Giles commended Umpire Jocko Conlan for attempting to keep the game moving before the fight started. He said if he punishes any of the participants in the fight he will inform those men of the action and they will be free to say how they have been punished.

"There will be no announcement from my office concerning any punishment," the National league chief said.

Giles and 7,321 other spectators saw Tebbetts and Walker swap punches in the ninth inning, then wrestle each other to the dirt around home plate while players of both clubs charged out onto the field.

Tebbetts suffered a slight nose bleed while Walker bore bruises on his face and neck.

The fight occurred only a few moments before Johnny Temple singled home pinch runner Chuck Harmon with the run that gave Cincinnati a 5-4 victory over the Cardinals.

With Temple at bat, two out and Redleg runners on first and second base, St. Louis catcher Bill Sarni called time and went out to the mound to confer with pitcher Paul LaPalme. The two Cardinal players spoke so long that Umpires Conlan and Artie Gore sought to break up the conference.

When they failed, Tebbetts came out of the Cincinnati dugout and demanded that the Cardinals be made to play ball. Immediately Walker came off the bench and met Tebbetts at home plate. Hot words followed and suddenly the two managers swung at each other.

In vetoing the harness racing commission bill by Rep. Paul Powell (D-Vienna), the governor said: "This bill would amend the 1945 statute regulating harness racing by requiring that no more than two members of the three-member board shall be of the same political party."

"This statute has stood in its present form for 10 years. There has been no abuse such as would call for this legislation. In statutes of this kind the state administration elected by the people should have the responsibility, exercised by its appointees."

The bill on hunting blinds on public-owned land would have given the blind-builder the privilege of occupying the blind up to the start of shooting hours. If the blind-builder were not in the blind by that time, any person could have used the blind.

The governor said it "conflicted" with the Department of Conservation's provisions covering public-owned hunting lands.

Stars Drop Two Weekend Games

The Harrisburg Stars dropped a pair of games over the July 4 weekend to bring their record for the season to five wins and four losses.

Sunday afternoon the Stars were beaten by Johnston City 13-7 and Monday Mat. Carmel won from the Stars 12-6. The Harrisburg team played both games away from home.

Don Wallace took the defeat in each game. Leading hitters for the Stars were Ken Nolen with five hits in nine tries, followed by Shewmake, who hit four for ten. Others cracking the hit column were Smith, Bledig, J. J. Nolen, Harrison 2 and Cowser, Wallace and Ziegler one each.

Thursday night the Stars travel to Grayville for a game under the lights. Sunday, July 10, the Stars will perform on the town park diamond, hosting the Mayfield, Ky., Black Hawks.

SOME THINGS MONEY CAN'T BUY—Not even $200,000 will help four-year-old Patricia Porm, right, jump rope like the other kids in this picture are doing. Patty, who lives in Chicago, Ill., lost her left leg when she was hit by a garbage truck. Her parents were awarded $200,000, largest individual settlement in the state's history, but Patty would rather have her leg.

Congressional Reporter Dropped by Soviet News Agency

WASHINGTON 10—Removal of congressional reporter Jean Montgomery from its payrolls today left the Soviet news agency Tass without an accredited American correspondent in Washington.

Miss Montgomery had covered Congress for Tass for 10 years. First news of the action came when Georgi N. Bolshakov, chief of Tass' Washington bureau, wrote a letter to the standing committee of correspondents, governing body of the congressional press galleries. The letter asked that Miss Montgomery be dropped from the list of correspondents. It said her credentials were being returned.

Bolshakov asked that he and another Russian, Vladimir B. Paramonov, be continued as accredited congressional correspondents. Paramonov told newsmen that Miss Montgomery was dropped in a staff reduction.
